

Don't let your cell phone control you!

It is becoming increasingly common for people owning cell phones (like BlackBerry) to become engaged and engrossed in browsing, surfing, reading emails, checking messages, etc. whilst being in discussions or conversation with people. This can become irritating and annoying for others in the gathering or meeting. Such actions are against the teachings of social etiquette derived from the Sunnah.

Whenever anyone came to Nabi (ﷺ) he would turn towards him in full and give him undivided attention until such time that the person turned away himself. (Tirmidhi)

Be in control of your cell phones, do not let it control you!

N.B. The same applies to other electronic gadgets, game consoles, etc.
